

Week of Action

At RVIS, we believe that a crucial part of a student's education is to learn the value of giving back. Each year, the Secondary Students and Teachers participate in a Week of Action where regular classes are cancelled and students step into the world with a bold ambition to make it a better place. Through their work, students help out in animal shelters, renovate houses for families in need, create murals in the school, and examine broad topics such as combating disease, freedom, gender inequality, and worldwide hunger. Through these projects, RVIS students gain compassion and an understanding of how they can directly impact the lives of others.
